David A. Cox, Editor

It is reported that several years ago researchers did a study to determine the effect hope has on those undergoing hardship. Two sets of laboratory rats were placed in separate tubs of water from which they could not escape unaided. The researchers left one set in the water and found that within an hour the exhausted rats all drowned.

The other rats were periodically lifted out of the water and then returned. These animals swam for over 24 hours. Why? Not because they were given rest, but because they had hope! They had come to believe that if they held out just a little longer, someone would reach down and rescue them. Without defending what seems to have been a rather cruel experiment, we simply observe that if this is the effect of hope on unthinking rodents, what must its power be in the lives of human beings?

There is nothing so critical to the success of gospel teaching as that it gives genuine hope to sincere hearers. Any supposed teaching of Christ which drives honest searching hearts to despair is a subversion of God's gracious purpose. "Thus God, determining to show more abundantly to the heirs of promise the immutability of His counsel, confirmed it by an oath, that by two immutable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we might have strong consolation, who had fled for refuge to lay hold of the hope set before us" (Hebrews 6:17-18).

We do not speak here of the proud, the insincere, the worldly hearers. The gospel is designed to cause them to stumble in their lusts. But genuine and humble souls should be made to rejoice at the implications of the story of the cross. However much tempered with sobriety, the response of such people to the preaching of Jesus should always, at last, be joy.

This is not to deny that the gospel begins with a profoundly painful indictment of sin, but it is easy to say that such should not be the final impact of the message. If the preaching of Christ begins by driving us to our knees in repentance, it must end by lifting us to our feet in confident faith and hope. Paul says that we are saved "in hope" (Romans 8:24) and truer words were never spoken. It is the confidence we feel in God's gracious promises and the assurance He gives us of our power to obtain them by faith that keeps us going and growing, serving God through good times and bad.

Indeed, it is this living by hope alone, having seen none of those blessed things which are the driving influence of our lives, which causes us to be so profoundly changed in character and attitude. We have to do right when not only is the reward for right nowhere in sight, but when punishing consequences for doing it are very near and very tangible. So is faith deepened and hope brightened (1 Peter 1:3-9).

And there is every reason that those who have trusted in Christ should have a bright and confident hope. The most wonderful thing has already happened. God, in the cross, has demonstrated His love for us so powerfully that we can never again have cause to doubt the depth of His commitment (Romans 5:8, 8:31). As Paul wonderingly asks, if that is what God is willing to do for His enemies, what would He be willing to do for His friends (Romans 5:10-11)? It is beyond imagining!

But it is not just God's overwhelming love for us that gives us hope, but the immensity of the power that works that loving purpose. Some have love, but no power. Others have power, but no love. God has both. "Now to Him who is able to do exceedingly abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that works in us, to Him be the glory in the church and in Christ Jesus through all ages, world without end. Amen" (Ephesians 3:20-21).

On March 5, 1979, scientists noted what was then called the most powerful energy burst every recorded. This burst of gamma radiation picked up by satellites lasted only one-tenth of a second, but in that brief instant it emitted as much energy as the sun does over a period of 3,000 years. That kind of energy, coming from our sun, would have vaporized the earth.

We marvel at the power that God sends pulsating through the universe, but it is dwarfed by the power that a loving God has exercised to save a lost humanity. Even the power that created the world is small by comparison to the enormous energy which God wields to produce spiritual rebirth in a single human being. That power, Paul says, beggars our wildest imaginings, and it is working in us!

How great, then, our hope should be, and how powerfully such a hope should affect how we live our lives and how we face our troubles and our failures. If we should grasp even a measure of this truth, would it not revolutionize us?

Lord, increase our faith --and our hope!

Before Discipline

Johnie Edwards

Discipline, in the form of withdrawing fellowship from a disorderly church member, is the last resort. There are a number of things that must be done first, before withdrawing.

1) Teaching: Much disorderly conduct could be prevented if there were more teaching on preventive measures. Many places have gotten away from pointed sermons on sins that cause folks to be subjects of discipline. How long has it been since you heard a plain, simple sermon on sin? That is, where sins were named like the Bible names them. We would do well to preach on 1 Corinthians 6:9-10. Here Paul noted some specific sins: "Unrighteousness, fornicators, idolaters, adulterers, effeminate, abusers of themselves with mankind, thieves, covetous, drunkards, revilers, and extortioners." The "works of the flesh" of Galatians 5:19-21 would be another good topic to preach on from time to time.

2) Convert The Erring: James penned, "Brethren, if any of you do err from the truth, and one convert him, Let him know, that he which converteth the sinner from the error of his way shall save a soul from death, and shall hide a multitude of sins" (James 5:19-20). We too often think of outsiders needing converting; sometimes church members do too!

3) Warn the Unruly: Quite often we see church members being unruly and nothing is said or done about it in time to prevent a falling away. Paul told the Thessalonians, "Now we exhort you, brethren, warn them that are unruly..." (1 Thessalonians 5:14). Sometimes warning the unruly may be all that is needed to get them to behave themselves.

4) Support The Weak: Sometimes brethren become weak spiritually and no one comes to their rescue. Paul said, "...support the weak" (1 Thessalonians 5:14; Acts 20:35). The Romans were told, "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves" (Romans 15:1). Have you taken the time to help a weak Christian bear his load?

5) Pray For Them: Our most vital tool in restoring the lost is to pray for them. John uttered, "If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask..." (1 John 5:14). Sometimes we don't have because we don't ask. Remember Jesus said, "Ask and it shall be given you..." (Matthew 7:7).

6) Show Care: Too often church members get to feeling no one really cares. May it never be said of us. "I looked on my right hand, and behold, but there was no man that would know me, refuge failed me; no man cared for my soul" (Psalm 142:4). May we as "members, have the same care one for another" (1 Corinthians 12:25).

No Comparision

Patrick Farish

Hurting? Listen: "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed to usward" (Romans 8:18).

Life involves suffering - "... All that would live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution" (2 Timothy 3:12); and beyond that suffering experienced because of the Way, there is the common-to-all-men suffering because of illness or injury, from family problems, or from financial reverse. Words cannot adequately communicate the misery and anguish of heart at the death of a loved one; or the pain brought about by a wayward mate, or a child gone astray - the overwhelming sense that this pain will never be eased, this hurt never be healed, this person never know serenity again. Romans 8:18 provides motivation to endure the suffering, here; in view of the recompense of reward, there.

And from the throes of our grief we should lift up our hearts to heaven, encouraged in spite of ourselves by God's promise. "The sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed to usward."

Imagine that! As miserable as we may be now in our sufferings, so overburdened that we think we can never rise again, that misery and those sufferings are not worthy to be compared with that which is in store. How beautiful heaven must be!
