Learning From Abraham's Faith

David A. Cox

"Take now your son, your only son Isaac, whom you love, and go to the land of Moriah, and offer him there as a burnt offering on one of the mountains which I shall tell you" — (Genesis 22:2).

Life definitely has its times of challenges and trials. In Abraham's life, this command from the Lord to Abraham is perhaps the most challenging moment. Abraham, leaving his homeland must have been tough, but to offer your own son as a sacrifice would be much greater. Indeed, this is a pivotal example in the life of Abraham that we should learn much. This is the event that the Hebrew writer recalls in Hebrews 11 while giving us examples of the great men of faith. What can we learn from this?

Abraham's Relationship with God.

At the time of this test of Abraham, we are told that God called "Abraham" and that he replied, "Here I am" (Genesis 22:1). Abraham was close to God and attentive to His words. He was not hiding in the bushes as Adam and Eve were doing in the garden of Eden after eating the fruit God told them not to eat. Instead, Abraham was living a life to please God and to do what God asked of him. Abraham's life was a close relationship, and understood God's position and his position before God. Abraham did not argue, did not make excuses, but instead heard and heeded what he was told.

Faith in God Comes Before Natural Reaction.

Can you imagine the emotions that must have been stirred within Abraham to hear this command from God? The sacrificing of human flesh upon an altar would be repugnant to anyone. Still, the offering of one's own son upon the altar would be much more so. In the text in Genesis 22, we see Abraham following through with God's command as he takes a knife to slay his son. We observe the faith of Abraham triumphing over his natural reaction. Even in the face of his son when he inquired, "where is the lamb for a burnt offering?" (Genesis 22:7). Yes, we see that faith like Abraham will come before natural reaction.

Faith Was Prepared for this Trial.

When the trial came in Abraham's life, his faith was prepared to do the right thing. The problem with not overcoming the difficulties of our faith is that our faith has not been prepared. In Corinthians 10:13, we are promised that God will not bring trials upon man, which he cannot bear. Abraham had developed his faith and was able to overcome and please God.

May each of us learn from these lessons as Abraham shows us in developing a faith that will be strong in times of great trial.

Big God, Little Me

Russ Bowman

In the Old Testament book of Job, a recurring topic of discussion between Job and his friends is the power and majesty of God:

- “To God I would commit my cause, Who does great things and unsearchable, marvelous things without number.” (Eliphaz, 5:8-9)
- “God is wise in heart and mighty in strength... He removes the mountains... He shakes the earth out of its place and its pillars tremble; He commands the sun and it does not rise; He seals off the stars; He alone spreads out the heavens and treads on the waves of the sea... He does great things past finding out, yes wonders without number.” (Job, 9:4-10)
- “Can you search out the deep things of God? Can you find out the limits of the Almighty? They are higher than heaven—what can you do? Deeper than Sheol—what can you know? Their measure is longer than the earth and broader than the sea.” (Zophar, 11:7-9)
- “Dominion and fear belong to Him... Is there any number to His armies? Upon whom does His light not rise?” (Bildad, 25:2-3).

Perhaps Job best summarizes when he concludes, “Indeed these are the mere edges of His ways, and how small a whisper we hear of Him! But the thunder of His power, who can understand?” (26:14).

These men served a “big God.” Perhaps their understanding was due in part to their lifestyle, which was far more connected to the powers and mysteries of the natural world than ours. They did not inhabit grand mansions in massive cities, illuminated unceasingly by artificial light. They watched the sunrise and sunset and gazed upon the brilliance of starry nights. They watched storms cross the landscape, stood upon the shores of the sea, and saw all of the power and mystery of “nature,” believing that God was greater than and reigning over it all. Such observations prompted David to write, “When I consider Your heavens, the work of Your fingers, the moon and the stars, which You have ordained, what is man that You are mindful of him?” (Psa 8:3-4). While we have tended to insulate ourselves from the natural world with our technology, we still have occasional reminders of the power of the world around us, and we are made to feel small. I watched and listened as Hurricane Ike devastated the Texas coast a few years ago, and I felt completely helpless in the face of such power. Yet God has stopped storms, prompted earthquakes, halted the sun, and created the universe with the mere utterance of His voice. That makes Him pretty big, and reminds me that I'm pretty little.

Until we recognize God's power, wisdom, sovereignty, and majesty, we will not truly trust Him or consistently honor Him with our lives. However, when we begin to acknowledge Him in all of His glory (realizing how feeble and dependent we are), the seed of real faith begins to grow. His power and wisdom and majesty not only arrest us with awe, they attract us because we are made in His image and offered fellowship with Him.

What a truly humbling consideration, that a Being of such grandeur and knowledge and honor, would condescend to live as a man and die on a cross simply so that He could offer association to weak and powerless men! “Behold what manner of love” (1 John 3:1).

And yet, how pitiful when we are so consumed with inferior pursuits. I live in a small town. I see people every day trying so hard to be so important in such an unimportant place. People are sacrificing their souls to be numbered among the movers and shakers in a town that most of the world couldn't find on a map if their life depended on it. And all the while, the most awe-inspiring and impressive Being in existence rules the universe. Not only has He created me and the world around me, He sustains me, has sacrificed for me, and continues to provide for me, all with the hope in His heart that I would aim to be associated with Him. Who cares if anyone in Lumberton, Texas knows me when I can be known by and associated with God Almighty! What honor or ambition can surpass the honor of being claimed as His own son or daughter? What can any man offer me that is greater than eternal life in a glorious realm where I am privileged to reign with the King Himself?

“From where then does wisdom come?... God understands the way to it, and He knows its place... When He made a law for the rain, and a path for the thunderbolt, then He saw wisdom and declared it; He established it... And He said to man, ‘Behold, the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom’ (Job 28:20-28). He is truly a big God. And I am so very little.

SUE HOLT TAYLOR (1949 – 2020): With deep sadness we note the sudden passing of sister Sue Taylor.

She had recently moved to Athens from West Limestone and identified with the church at Market Street. Sue loved the Lord and loved her family. We have all benefitted from our association with her. SERVICE CHANGES: This morning we are beginning to meet in our Bible classes at 9:45 on Sunday morning and on Wednesday evening at 7:00. We will be assembling for our Sunday worship services at 10:30 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. The teachers teaching this quarter of Bible classes are listed on the bulletin boards in the east and west wings. There is always a need for teachers, if you would like to teach a class, please see Tommy Coblentz.

LIVE-STREAMING : It has been seven months since we have met in our Bible classes. At that time, we began live-streaming Bible studies and lessons. We started live-streaming our Sunday morning services last October on Facebook Live. The streaming was done for those who were unable to assemble could join in on our service. It was never imagined that it would become so crucial in the year that was to come. Through all of this, I have seen great value in being able to live-stream lessons. As we move to the future, we begin to assemble together and meet in our classes; I may plan additional streaming studies through Facebook and Zoom. Of course, these streaming lessons have lacked what we get from assembling together, but there is much value in them. I appreciate many of you who have faithfully joined the studies and the kind and gracious comments you have made about them. May the Lord bless us as we move back to normality, and may we all be stronger in our resolve to serve the Lord.

PARKING LOT: The work on the parking lots continues. The work on the east lot is making good progress. The work on the other lots will be following soon.
